Tom Paladino is a scalar energy researcher who specializes in helping people recover from pathogenic infections so they can enjoy better overall health. He has developed a technique called Scalar Light™ that remotely and painlessly causes agents of infection to dissipate in his clients.

Inspired by Nikola Tesla (a genius who invented alternating current), Tom began studying scalar energy early in his college career. He went on to pursue an independent course of study geared toward understanding and harnessing energy outside of the traditional electromagnetic spectrum.

Tom's theory is that all energy in the universe begins as scalar energy, and the sun and other stars are points of origin – or storehouses – for this fundamental life force. He has developed specialized instruments that show promise in harnessing and transmitting instructive energy for healing purposes.
